

What is the main subject of Job 21:1-21:34?

- A. The injustice of the world
- B. The power of faith
- C. The joy of wealth
- D. The importance of friendship

Answer: A. The injustice of the world

What does Job question in these verses?

- A. When will my suffering end?
- B. What is the meaning of life?
- C. Why do the wicked prosper?
- D. How can I become wealthy?

Answer: C. Why do the wicked prosper?

How does Job describe the wicked in his lament?

- A. They suffer greatly
- B. They live long and prosper
- C. They are wise and just
- D. They are humble and kind

Answer: B. They live long and prosper

What does Job believe about the suffering of the righteous?

- A. It is a test of faith

- B. It is not always a result of sin
- C. It is deserved and just
- D. It is always a punishment from God

Answer: B. It is not always a result of sin

How does Job feel about the justice of God in these verses?

- A. He fears it
- B. He praises it
- C. He trusts it
- D. He questions it

Answer: D. He questions it

What does Job suggest about the fate of the wicked?

- A. They repent and change their ways
- B. They often live in comfort and ease
- C. They are always punished in this life
- D. They always suffer greatly

Answer: B. They often live in comfort and ease

What does Job ultimately conclude about the injustice he sees?

- A. It is a punishment from God
- B. It remains a mystery
- C. It is the result of fate
- D. It can be explained by human actions

Answer: B. It remains a mystery

How does Job respond to the suffering he witnesses?

- A. With acceptance and peace
- B. With confusion and despair
- C. With anger and bitterness
- D. With joy and gratitude

Answer: B. With confusion and despair

What does Job long for in the face of injustice?

- A. Vengeance against his enemies
- B. Wealth and prosperity
- C. Escape from his suffering
- D. A fair and just world

Answer: D. A fair and just world

What lesson can be drawn from Job's lament in these verses?

- A. God always rewards the righteous
- B. The world is full of suffering and injustice
- C. Suffering is always a test of faith
- D. Bad things only happen to bad people

Answer: B. The world is full of suffering and injustice

